

Psychology Department Charter

Glendale Community College

Approved October 11, 2024

Department Philosophy and Mission

Philosophy

As members of the Department, we are committed to thinking innovatively to accomplish our goals as individuals and as a Department, understanding that the optimal results occur when both individual and group goals are attained. We seek to establish and maintain a positive working environment of mutual respect for one another without regard to the roles we play. While we cannot succeed without each other's support, we remain responsible for our individual success. As department members, we have the right to be heard, respected, and valued by one another, and we share responsibility for making our Department successful.

Mission

Utilizing a scientific and ethical approach to teaching and learning, the mission of the Psychology Department is to provide a dynamic, supportive environment that promotes high academic standards and a commitment to our students and our community.

Objectives

- To provide an educational environment where teaching and learning flourish as top priorities.
- To model positive attitudes and behaviors for our students that promote quality work, self-discipline, personal motivation, ethical behavior, effective leadership, and teamwork.
- To prepare students for lifelong learning and future academic or professional success.
- To maintain a Faculty and Staff actively engaged in their respective professions.
- To model effective organizational performance based on commitment, individual competence, integrity, self-management, and pride in quality of work.
- To provide a Learning Environment that actualizes the GCC Values: Learning, Quality, Integrity, Inclusiveness, Community, and Future-Focused.

We establish this charter to specify the guidelines and principles we will use to facilitate the creation of the Department culture we seek. The charter outlines the process and principles for the development of policies and procedures to govern the operation of the Department.

For the purposes of this document, Residential Faculty whose primary appointment is in another department at GCC and who are teaching overload for Psychology will receive the same teaching and learning support and be subject to the same assignment and reappointment processes as Adjunct Faculty unless superseded by the Residential Faculty Agreement.

1. Guidelines for Approving and Amending the Charter

Department Charters will be reviewed annually, with revisions approved by September 30th. Once approved, the Charter will be submitted to the Faculty Senate President by the deadline outlined in the College Plan. The Faculty Senate will then post the Charter publicly and include it as an Appendix to the College Plan. Revisions will include updates based on Faculty Agreement and College Plan changes, although a Chair may revise a specific section of the document to comply with District and College policies at any time. If a Charter is in conflict with the Faculty Agreement and/or College Plan, the Faculty Agreement and College Plan shall take precedence.

The department will offer an open comment period in September of no less than two weeks for all Residential Faculty, Adjunct Faculty who teach within the department, and Department Staff to suggest Charter revisions and will also allow no less than one week to provide feedback on suggested revisions. The Chair may designate one or more Residential Faculty to manage the revision process. Following the open comment period, the Chair or designee will moderate a conversation with all voting members, followed by a vote on the revisions with a $\frac{2}{3}$ majority required for approval. Voting members include Residential Faculty members who have their primary assignment in the Psychology Department. Adjunct Faculty and Department Staff should inform the vote by sharing their feedback by adding comments to the Charter draft, talking with the Adjunct Representative or a trusted Residential Faculty member, and/or attending the department meeting where the Charter is being discussed. The Chair votes as a regular voting member of the department. At the request of any voting member, the vote will be held by secret ballot, ensuring anonymity.

2. Process of Identifying, Selecting, Delegating, and Compensating Department Supervisor Roles

Each academic year, the Chair will delegate leadership responsibilities in accordance with the Faculty Agreement, College Plan, and the Department's needs. Assignments are based on individual Faculty members' expertise, interests, and current department priorities. The Chair is responsible for assigning teaching responsibilities, supervisory duties, and summer supervision in consultation with Residential and Adjunct Faculty each semester. Department roles may be reassigned annually or as necessary to meet evolving department needs.

Fall, Spring, and Summer Supervisory compensation will be determined by the Chair in consultation with Faculty receiving supervisory pay once the annual budget is finalized. Current pay for Assistant Chairs is based on weekly time spent on supervisory responsibilities (e.g., 2 hours of work per week is equivalent to 1 load hour) and for the Occupational Program Director as specified in the College Plan. In cases where revisions to the pay structure are necessary and consensus cannot be reached by the leadership team (e.g., Chair and Assistant Chairs), feedback may be solicited from all department Faculty to prioritize compensated duties. Each fall, Residential Faculty will be informed of the responsibilities and compensation for each supervisory role.

The Faculty Chair will be evaluated annually in accordance with the College Plan. By April 15th, Residential and Adjunct Faculty, as well as Staff, will receive an evaluation form to provide feedback on faculty in other supervisory roles. The form will not require names, and department members will be encouraged to write their feedback in a way that does not identify them. Aggregate feedback will be provided to the Faculty supervisor to preserve anonymity. This feedback will support the professional development and continuous improvement of those in supervisory positions. Faculty interested in supervisory roles should express their interest to the Chair by May 1st for consideration for the following academic year.

The RFA Supervisory Duties will be shared by the Faculty Chair and other Supervisory Roles as indicated below. The Psychology Department has the following supervisory roles: Assistant Chair for Scheduling, Assistant Chair for Teaching & Learning, Assistant Chair for Advising Support, and Developmental Disabilities Specialist Certificate Occupational Program Director (DDSC OPD). It is important to note that the items below vary significantly in required time-on-task, and the number of items assigned to the other supervisory roles does not reflect their overall workload or the complexity of their responsibilities.

3. Process for Shared Academic Freedom Decision-Making

Academic freedom is a core principle that includes the freedom of instruction, research, publication, extramural speech, and intramural speech. Residential Faculty, in consultation with One-Year-Only (OYO), One-Semester-Only (OSO), and Adjunct Faculty, will collaboratively determine curriculum, relevant subject matter for courses, pedagogy, textbooks, and other materials used in teaching. All Faculty maintain the right and responsibility to determine grades and evaluations of student performance.

Common Course Elements Decision-Making

In courses with multiple sections taught by different Faculty members, shared academic freedom takes precedence over individual academic freedom. This ensures that all Faculty involved have a voice in shaping common course elements, such as textbooks, syllabus statements, assessments, and LMS modules, while also maintaining consistency for students across sections. Decisions regarding common course elements will follow a meaningful and inclusive process that invites involvement from all Faculty members (full-time and adjunct) teaching the course at the time the decision is made. Periodic reviews will be scheduled to ensure these elements continue to meet the department's needs and objectives.

Required Canvas Elements

Currently, the Department does not mandate specific Canvas elements for all courses beyond posting the syllabus, grades, and relevant announcements. However, Faculty are strongly encouraged to utilize tools such as Simple Syllabus to standardize course materials. A consistent approach to Canvas design ensures students experience a more cohesive learning environment and helps meet administrative regulations regarding required syllabus content. The Department will continue to review and recommend best practices for Canvas usage, aiming to support both Faculty success and positive student outcomes.

Course Shells

For courses with established Common Course Shells, such as PSY101 and PSY132, Faculty are encouraged to use the provided materials to maintain consistency in course delivery and student outcomes. Residential Faculty have the autonomy to modify or update assignments and assessments to suit their instructional approaches. Adjunct Faculty also have the flexibility to make modifications, but must do so in consultation with the Course Lead to ensure alignment with course objectives and department standards.

Assessment

Faculty are expected to support the educational mission of the College by actively engaging in the student learning assessment process at the course, program, and institutional levels. The primary goal of assessment is continuous improvement in teaching and learning, guided by evidence-based practices. All Faculty are expected to participate in assessment activities, which may include, but are not limited to:

- Collecting and analyzing data for course-level assessments,
- Contributing to program-level assessments,
- Supporting institutional assessment initiatives.

The Department Assessment Coordinator (DAC) will guide Faculty through these processes, ensuring alignment with college and department goals. A Program Assessment Lead will be identified to support the assessment of the Associate in Arts, Emphasis in Psychology degree, while the Developmental Disabilities Specialist Certificate (DDSC) Occupational Program Director will oversee program assessment for the DDSC certificate of completion.

Residential and Adjunct Faculty who are sole instructors for their courses will serve as Course Leads. For courses with multiple Faculty members, one Faculty member will be designated as the Course Lead. Course Leads are responsible for developing or selecting assessments in collaboration with other course Faculty (including dual enrollment Faculty), submitting course assessment reports, and coordinating with the Program Assessment Lead to ensure alignment across course, program, and institutional assessment levels.

Course Leads, in collaboration with the Program Assessment Lead and Department Assessment Coordinator, will guide Faculty in implementing identified interventions to improve student outcomes, ensuring that the assessment process is both collaborative and reflective of the department's commitment to continuous improvement. Reassessment will occur following the implementation of these interventions to measure their effectiveness.

Course Materials Selection

The Department is committed to supporting students by selecting high-quality, cost-effective course materials that enhance their educational experience. Whenever possible, the Department encourages the use of Open Educational Resources (OER) to reduce costs for students. In cases where OER is not available or suitable, low-cost options should be prioritized. The Department recognizes that in certain courses, low- or no-cost options may not always be available, but Faculty should make every effort to consider affordability when selecting materials.

For courses with multiple sections, the Department encourages consistency in course materials to ensure a similar learning experience for students, particularly when they transition between different instructors or sections. Consistency also limits disruptions for students in the event of instructor changes during the semester.

Role of Residential and Adjunct Faculty in Course Material Selection

Residential Faculty have the autonomy to select their course materials. Adjunct Faculty who are the sole instructors for a course also have this autonomy. For multi-section courses taught by both Residential and Adjunct Faculty, the Course Lead will select the required materials after consulting with all Faculty members teaching the course. The goal is to ensure that the selected materials align with course objectives and student needs.

For courses with many sections, a committee of Residential and Adjunct Faculty may be convened to select the textbook and other materials. In such cases, the committee will ensure that the materials chosen meet the educational goals of the course and the Department's commitment to accessibility. The materials selected by the committee will be used by all Adjunct Faculty. While Residential Faculty are encouraged to use the same materials for consistency, they have the option to choose alternate materials, provided they meet the course objectives.

Each fall, the Course Lead will consult with all Faculty teaching multi-section courses to determine whether the course materials should be updated or changed. Any changes to course materials will be implemented no earlier than the following spring semester to allow sufficient time for review and course revisions.

Course Material Availability

In addition to providing materials through Canvas or online platforms, Faculty should place physical copies of any required materials that cannot be digitized on Reserve in the GCC Library to ensure accessibility for all students.

Other Common Course Elements

If additional common course elements are identified, the Department will collaborate to determine their implementation. This process will respect the principles of academic freedom while ensuring that shared elements support a cohesive learning environment and uphold the department's educational standards.

4. Teaching and Non-Teaching Assignments

The Chair or designee, is responsible for assigning teaching and non-teaching assignments in a manner that aligns with the mission, priorities, and instructional needs of the Department and College. These assignments will be made with fairness and efficiency, taking into account each Faculty member's expertise, teaching load, and current department needs. The Chair or designee will consult with individual Faculty members to discuss their preferences and areas of specialization to ensure a balanced distribution of responsibilities.

If the assignments are delegated to a designee, the Chair retains the authority to make final adjustments to meet evolving departmental needs. Flexibility will be maintained throughout the semester to accommodate changes, with the understanding that the needs of students and the Department take precedence.

Meeting Student Needs

The Department is committed to meeting the instructional needs of students, particularly by offering in-person courses as part of its long-standing tradition. Residential Faculty are encouraged to be available to teach at least one course per semester in an in-person modality, as this is considered a best practice to engage with students directly.

When determining course schedules, the Chair or designee will work to balance Faculty requests with the instructional needs of students. Faculty preferences, such as course modality or specific teaching times, will be considered, but the final decisions will be guided by student demand and the overarching goals of the Department and College.

In cases where Faculty requests and student needs do not align, the Chair or designee will collaborate with the Faculty member to explore alternative options that satisfy both parties while prioritizing the needs of students.

Seniority Process

Course assignments for Fall and Spring semesters will be made based on seniority, with Residential Faculty receiving their schedules first, followed by Adjunct Faculty. Seniority is determined by the number of years a Faculty member has been serving in their respective role (full-time for Residential and part-time for Adjunct Faculty). For Residential Faculty, years of full-time service to the Department establish seniority, while for Adjunct Faculty, years of part-time service determines seniority.

Adjunct Faculty who submit their schedule preferences by the designated deadline will be assigned courses in an iterative process, with each Faculty member receiving one class per round until all courses are assigned. Those who miss the deadline will be placed at the bottom of the seniority list for that semester.

Residential Faculty who wish to teach part of their required fall or spring load within another department or carry over load from fall to spring must first work with the Chair to ensure that the Psychology Department's needs are met. If approved, the Chair will collaborate with the other department, Human Resources, and Payroll to coordinate the arrangement, ensuring compliance with workload policies and proper compensation for the faculty member.

During the Summer semester, course assignments will occur in a similar iterative process for both Residential and Adjunct Faculty, with each Faculty member assigned one course per round until all desired courses are distributed.

Classroom Assignments

When possible, Faculty teaching consecutive classes will be assigned to the same classroom. If this is not feasible, the Department will attempt to assign Faculty to nearby rooms for consecutive teaching slots to minimize disruption. Classroom assignments will generally follow the seniority process, with senior Faculty given priority for classroom preferences. However, certain facility requirements, such as lab or computer-based courses, may take precedence over seniority to ensure appropriate classroom resources are available.

Special Cases and Exceptions

In cases where two or more Faculty members have identical seniority (e.g., hired in the same year), conflicts will be resolved through a discussion. If necessary, a random method (e.g., a coin flip) will be used to determine course assignments.

Emeritus Residential Faculty will be granted the highest seniority if they choose to teach as Adjunct Faculty.

Residential Faculty who leave the Department but continue as Adjunct Faculty will have their seniority placed based on years of service.

Exceptions to Seniority

While seniority plays a significant role in course assignments, the Chair or designee may make exceptions based on course importance, program needs, or facility requirements. High-demand courses or those critical for degree completion may take precedence over seniority to ensure student success. Similarly, lab or computer-based courses may require specific facilities that limit flexibility in assignments.

The Department strives to honor Adjunct Faculty schedules and limit last-minute changes to the greatest degree possible. However, during the academic year, Residential Faculty may replace Adjunct Faculty on courses if their assigned courses do not fill in order to meet their scheduled load. In the Summer, Residential Faculty may not replace Adjunct Faculty after assignments have been completed.

Seat Time Compliance

Faculty must meet all seat time and modality requirements required by federal and institutional guidelines. This includes ensuring that students attend classes for the scheduled times in the scheduled modality (in person, online, or hybrid). Faculty should not regularly conclude class early or change teaching modalities without approval of the Chair and Dean, as appropriate.

Any absences must be cleared with the Chair as per the Faculty substitution guidelines in the Residential Faculty Agreement and the Adjunct Faculty Handbook. Extended unavailability (e.g., 3 business days) to online students is considered an absence, and Faculty must work with the Chair to arrange alternative coverage to ensure continuity of instruction.

Substitute Instructor Policy

Students who register for an in-person class expect that their learning experience will take place in the designated modality, and if the instructor is unavailable, efforts should be made to ensure the missed seat time is delivered in the same in-person format rather than shifting to an alternate modality such as online work.

All Faculty are required to promptly notify the Chair and Administrative Assistant of any absences so the required class cancellation signs can be posted. If the Chair or Administrative Assistant cannot be reached and the cancellation is time-sensitive, contact College Police. All faculty must log their absence time in the Human Capital Management system.

Residential Faculty

Residential Faculty will consult with the Chair to determine if a substitute is necessary for any missed classes. Faculty will do their best to meet federal seat time requirements by limiting the number of class absences not covered by a substitute. When no substitute is available, and absences are not excessive, alternative work may be offered to students to make up for missed seat time.

Adjunct Faculty

Adjunct Faculty are required to seek substitutes for missed classes. In case a substitute is not available, they must provide alternative work or assignments to meet seat time requirements. Adjunct Faculty are expected to notify the Chair and Administrative Assistant as far in advance as possible to arrange a substitute and ensure students are informed of class changes.

5. Department Meeting Schedule

The Chair will call formal department meetings that include Residential Faculty, Adjunct Faculty, and Staff at various times throughout the year, depending on the volume of business to be addressed. The schedule for these meetings will be announced at the start of each fall and spring semester. In advance of each meeting, the Chair will prepare and distribute a tentative agenda, allowing Residential and Adjunct Faculty and Staff sufficient time to request the inclusion of specific items.

Residential Faculty Meetings

Residential Faculty and Staff will hold monthly meetings, with additional meetings scheduled as needed. Attendance at these meetings is expected as part of the service commitment of Residential Faculty members. Adjunct Faculty may request to add items to the agenda and are welcome to attend, except when confidential information is being discussed. In such cases, meetings will be restricted to Residential Faculty only.

When the Department has an appointed Adjunct Representative, they are encouraged to attend Residential Faculty meetings to represent the voice of Adjunct Faculty and ensure their perspectives are considered. Meeting minutes will be made available to all department members.

Adjunct Faculty Meetings

The Department will host an Adjunct Faculty meeting during Accountability Week each semester. Adjunct Faculty are strongly encouraged to attend these meetings. If unable to attend, Adjunct Faculty are expected to review the minutes and/or watch the meeting recording, if available, to stay informed about department discussions and decisions.

6. Expectations of Department Faculty

All department faculty are expected to meet their professional and institutional commitments within the College and the Department. Faculty should familiarize themselves with the Residential Faculty Agreement, the Adjunct Faculty Handbook, the College Plan, and the Department Charter to ensure compliance with all relevant policies and procedures. Active engagement in departmental affairs is critical to fostering a collaborative environment and supporting the Department's mission.

Faculty are encouraged to participate in department initiatives, such as committee work, student advocacy, and student learning assessment, contributing their expertise to advance the goals of the Department and College. These activities not only support the educational mission of the institution but also enhance student learning and success.

While both Residential and Adjunct faculty are vital members of the Department, the scope of their responsibilities differs. Residential faculty are expected to engage fully in service roles, including committee work and department initiatives, as part of their professional obligations. Adjunct faculty, while not required to engage in these areas, are encouraged to participate to the extent that they are interested and available. The Department recognizes that the primary responsibility of Adjunct faculty is instruction, and their contributions to department service are voluntary.

Teaching Expectations

Faculty are expected to adhere to best practices in teaching and learning, as outlined in the College's Learning Environment Guiding Principles and the Department's Statement of Teaching Expectations. These practices include fostering an inclusive and engaging classroom environment, using active learning strategies, providing timely feedback, and continuously assessing student progress to ensure effective learning.

Evaluations of teaching will formally occur as described in the Residential Faculty Agreement and Adjunct Faculty Handbook. During these evaluations, faculty are expected to demonstrate how they have met the Department's Teaching Expectations, including effective course design, delivery, and student engagement. Faculty should also ensure that they are integrating evidence-based instructional strategies into their teaching.

The Department encourages all faculty to regularly reflect on their teaching practices and seek opportunities for professional growth. Faculty who need additional support in meeting the Teaching Expectations are encouraged to connect with the Assistant Chair for Teaching and Learning, with fellow department members, the Center for Teaching, Learning, and Engagement (CTLE), or other professional development resources available through the College.

Continuous improvement in teaching is a shared priority, and the Department is committed to providing resources and support to help faculty enhance their instructional practices.

Observations of Teaching

The primary purpose of teaching observations is to provide constructive feedback that supports faculty in their professional growth and helps ensure that high-quality teaching practices are consistently maintained throughout the Department. Observations aim to foster a collaborative process that enhances instructional practices and student outcomes.

For Probationary Residential Faculty: The Chair will conduct the teaching observation.

For Adjunct Faculty: Observations are typically conducted by the Assistant Chair for Teaching & Learning. However, if content expertise or a fresh perspective is needed, the Assistant Chair may recommend an alternate observer. Adjunct faculty may also request an alternative observer by consulting with the Chair.

Observation Process

Probationary Residential Faculty will be observed in accordance with RFA requirements and GCC practice.

Adjunct Faculty will be observed on a regular, recurring basis of at least every three years. Newly hired Adjunct Faculty will be observed in their first three semesters of teaching, after which they will be observed at least every three years. Observations may be carried out more frequently at the request of either the Adjunct Faculty or the Assistant Chair for Teaching & Learning or the Chair when it is deemed by either party that there are concerns or issues that warrant it.

In a semester when an observation is to occur, the Assistant Chair for Teaching & Learning will reach out to the Adjunct Faculty to notify them in advance and no later than at least two weeks prior to the observation. Each observation, regardless of modality or format (see below), will include the completion of a written evaluation feedback form (completed by the Assistant Chair for Teaching & Learning) and a follow-up meeting between the Adjunct Faculty Member and the Assistant Chair for Teaching & Learning. Any areas marked as "Needs Improvement" will be accompanied by a sufficient explanation that includes actionable steps for improvement.

Observation Formats

Faculty and the observer will mutually agree upon the date and format of the observation. The available observation options include:

1. In-Person or Live Online Class Observation: A 50-75 minute observation of an in-person or live online class session. This format allows for direct observation of the faculty member's teaching methods, student interaction, and classroom management. Access to the Canvas course is not required unless requested by the faculty member. The observer may ask for content directly related to the evaluation criteria, such as the syllabus or class session slide deck.
2. Canvas Course Guided Tour: A 50-75 minute guided tour of the faculty member's Canvas course showcasing how course content is structured and aligned with the observation criteria. This option is ideal for faculty who wish to demonstrate their use of online teaching tools and course design strategies.
3. Canvas Course Access: The observer will be granted TA-level access to the Canvas course for at least three business days. This access allows for a thorough review of the course materials, student engagement, and alignment with observation criteria. The observer agrees not to download, edit, or alter any course content and will only reference examples noted in the evaluation form.

Follow-Up and Support

For any areas marked as "Needs Improvement," the observer will follow up with the faculty member in the next semester to provide additional feedback and support. Faculty are encouraged to reach out to the Department or the Center for Teaching, Learning, and Engagement (CTLE) for further guidance.

Additionally, faculty may request a Peer Observation before their formal observation to receive informal feedback from a colleague. This can be a valuable resource for those looking to refine specific aspects of their teaching.

Student Evaluations of Teaching (SET)

As part of the Department's commitment to instructional excellence, Student Evaluations of Teaching (SET) will be sent to all enrolled students near the end of each fall, spring, and summer semester. Residential faculty can choose how to incorporate SET data into their Independent Development Plan (IDP) or Faculty Evaluation Plan (FEP), using either a personal SET instrument or the departmental SET. Adjunct faculty in an evaluation semester are expected to share the departmental SET form with their students and strongly encourage or require completion to ensure a reasonable response rate.

Regardless of evaluation requirements, all SET results will be shared with the appropriate faculty member. Faculty may choose to use SET data as part of their professional development, at their discretion, or as described in policy (for faculty engaged in IDP, FEP, or Adjunct Evaluation processes). Faculty are encouraged to use SET results as an opportunity for reflective practice and ongoing improvement of their teaching.

Communication Expectations

Effective and timely communication is essential for fostering a positive departmental environment and ensuring student success. The Department commits to regular communications with all Residential and Adjunct Faculty and Staff, both in written form and through formal and informal meetings. Faculty and Staff are expected to participate in Residential or Adjunct meetings (as appropriate) or if attendance is not possible, to review the minutes or the meeting recording, if available. Active Faculty and Staff are expected to regularly review and respond on a weekly basis to all Department, College, and District communications sent to their Maricopa email address. Faculty and Staff are expected to complete all required MCCCDC trainings and acknowledgments in a timely manner.

Access to Office Space and Resources

All Faculty can expect access to office space, instructional tools, and resources necessary to fulfill their teaching and departmental responsibilities. The Department is committed to providing these resources to support the professional and instructional success of all Faculty, using the budget to the extent allowed. Faculty should notify the Chair of any specific needs for tools or resources to ensure proper allocation and support.

Support of Departmental Priorities

The Department commits to supporting Psychology students in Research Methods or Skills, Opportunities, and Achievement through Research (SOAR) and Psi Beta / Psychology Club. Department Faculty are expected to respond in a timely and supportive manner to calls for data collection by the Research Methods or SOAR students and to attend their Poster Sessions, if possible. Department Faculty are also expected to share Psi Beta / Psychology Club information with students, encourage their participation, and attend events like Induction and Open House, if possible. Residential Faculty and Staff should make every effort to attend key student events unless teaching or working schedules prohibit it.

Professional Development

All Faculty and Staff are encouraged to make use of the professional development opportunities available to them. These opportunities include, but are not limited to, events sponsored by the Center for Teaching, Learning, and Engagement (CTLE), the Maricopa Center for Learning and Innovation (MCLI), the Employee Learn Center (ELC), and professional organizations. Faculty and Staff are encouraged to take advantage of the professional growth funds provided by MCCCDC to support their development. Adjunct Faculty are encouraged to engage in approved professional development activities if they wish to advance to the Tier 2 or Tier 3 salary levels.

Department Committees

It will be necessary at times to develop committees to perform relatively short-term tasks. Committees typically should not be in existence for more than one to three years. These committees may consist of Residential Faculty, Adjunct Faculty, and Staff members, depending on the purposes of the committee.

The Department will determine what roles, beyond those listed as delegable, are necessary for the successful functioning of the Department. These roles include, but are not limited to, service related to Strategic Planning, Instructional Council/Articulation Task Force, Residential and Adjunct Hiring, and Adjunct Faculty Mentoring. Residential Faculty will be expected to volunteer for these roles in a manner that promotes equitable service among all department members, with members who have not previously or recently served being willing to volunteer for roles as needed. Conditions that prevent a Faculty member from volunteering should be discussed with the Chair.

Adjunct Faculty are encouraged to serve on committees to the extent they wish, recognizing that they are not required to do so. The Department will make every effort to provide monetary or non-monetary compensation for such work.

Department Staff Support

Department Staff will be fully supported by the Chair and will have the right to participate in departmental decision-making processes based on their roles and areas of expertise. They will be governed by the policies and guidelines outlined in the Staff Policy Manual. The Chair will ensure that Staff are provided with the tools, resources, and professional development opportunities needed to perform their duties effectively and grow in their roles. Staff are integral to the success of the department and will work collaboratively with faculty to support the department's mission. Regular feedback and evaluation will be provided to promote continuous improvement and recognize Staff contributions.

7. Adjunct Rights and Support

The Department is committed to adhering to the Adjunct Faculty rights outlined in the Residential Faculty Agreement and Adjunct Faculty Handbook. The Department recognizes that Adjunct Faculty are an integral part of the Department whose voice is important in the consideration of Department goals, textbook selection, and course scheduling for those courses that Adjunct Faculty teach. The Department is committed to providing tools and resources to support Adjunct Faculty retention and instructional success.

Adjunct Support

All new Adjunct Faculty will be provided with a mentor to ease their transition, serve as a primary contact, and support their development as an instructor. Mentors should strive to provide support in a variety of ways including but not limited to: Having an intake/orientation-style meeting with the new adjunct, sharing teaching strategies and/or materials where appropriate, having regularly scheduled check-in meetings (e.g., once every two weeks), and offering to provide supportive observations of teaching and/or a review of course materials.

Adjunct Faculty will be expected to engage with their mentor to the degree appropriate for their instructional experience.

Adjunct Representative

To the extent possible, the department will identify an Adjunct Faculty member to serve as the Adjunct Representative. This Faculty member will be included in all Residential Faculty communications and invited to attend Residential Faculty meetings, except in cases where confidential information is discussed. The Adjunct Representative will act as a liaison between Adjunct Faculty and department leadership, providing a voice for Adjunct Faculty concerns and facilitating communication as needed.

We will strive to provide compensation for this position, either in monetary or non-monetary forms, depending on available resources. Non-monetary compensation may include priority consideration for teaching assignments, both in the number and type of classes, as well as access to shared office space within the department, as availability permits.

Process for Reappointment of Department Adjunct Faculty

Fluctuations in enrollment can create unanticipated staffing needs. In as much as possible, the Chair will notify Adjunct Faculty of reappointment or non-reappointment, with as much advance notice as possible, so that Adjunct Faculty are able to anticipate how many sections of a given course will need to be staffed. It is understood by all Department Faculty that enrollment and College budgetary needs may impact the timeliness of reappointment notification.

Reappointment may be affected by factors other than enrollment. Adjunct Faculty who take a leave of absence may return to find the needs of the Department have changed, and their seniority status adjusted. Adjunct Faculty who consistently receive poor student evaluations or poor peer observations, reviewed and substantiated student complaints, and/or fail to meet standards of professional responsibility may not be reappointed. Barring serious or continued issues, the Department commits to working with Adjunct Faculty to address instructional or professional concerns.

8. College-Specific Requirements from the College Plan

This section will be updated to include any college-specific requirements as set forth in the College Plan. As of September 2024, no such requirements exist.
